INTRODUCTION [Font: Times New Roman, size: 12, bold]

Introduction includes background on issues or problems as well as the urgency and rationalization of activities (research or devotion). The purpose of the activities and the troubleshooting plan are presented in this section. Relevant literature reviews and hypothesis development (if any) are included in this section. Give previous research, so that it can show novelty or novelty of the research you do, especially taken from articles published in journals, as many as five articles and then added in the bibliography. Introduction, ending with the purpose of writing or research in descriptive form. Written without sub-chapters. [Font: Times New Roman, size: 12, regular].

RESEARCH METHOD [Font: Times New Roman, size: 12, bold]

Inform briefly about the material and methods used in research, including subject/material studied, the tools used, the experimental design or design used, sampling techniques, variable yang will be poured, data retrieval techniques, analysis, and statical model used.

Avoid over-writing statistics formulae. If already using a well-known method, mention the method's name only. If needed, mention the source used as a reference. For qualitative research, research methods can adjust. The manuscript is written with a line density of 1.5 spaces, Times New Roman with 12-pt font.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSIONS [Font: Times New Roman, size: 12, bold]

This section presents the results of the research. Research results can be supplemented with tables, graphs (figures), or charts. The discussion section describes the data processing results, interprets the discovery logically, relates to the relevant reference source. If possible, avoid using sub-chapters [Font: Times New Roman, size: 12, regular].

BIBLIOGRAPHY [Times New Roman 12, bold]

General guidelines for writing a reference:
References listed in the bibliography are only references quoted in the manuscript.
For article research results, the bibliography is at least 15, and it has referred to from about 20% of book text and 80% scientific journal's article.

The updated scientific journals need to be considered, at least is the results of relevant publications in the last ten years.

The bibliography is arranged alphabetically based on the alphabetical form of the author's name.

Author's name stipulation: the name displayed is the last name (surname) followed by the abbreviation of the first name (and middle, if any).

If there is more than one author, then the writing is the same and, if there are two or more people, the word uses the '&' symbol.

The reference title begins with a capital letter in each syllable, except for conjunctions.

Every writing, the name, (year), article title and, so on ends with a period (.) before continuing with the next word. For writing volume (number), journals are marked with a colon (:) without any spaces.

Writing bibliography and citations are recommended using a reference application (Mendeley) or a bibliography with Harvard-APA Style. [Font: Times New Roman, size: 10, regular.]

Examples of authoring can be seen in explaining each type of literature worth mentioning.

If the source of bibliography is an article in a scientific journal, it is written in the order: the name of the author. (year). the title of the article. Journal name. Volume (number): page (Italicized journal name). If the author is more than one, the writing name is the same and the name of the last author uses '&'.

Example:

Gaus, N., Basri, M., Thamrin, H., & Ritonga, F. U. (2020). Understanding the nature and practice of leadership in higher education: a phenomenological approach. International Journal of Leadership in Education, 1-19.
